Gender Change in Academia

Birgit Riegraf,Brigitte Aulenbacher>Edit Kirsch-Auwärter,Ursula Müller,2010-07-15 Editors Foreword The fundamental changes currently taking place in the national and international science landscapes can no longer be overlooked Within those changes reforms do not go as planned but as is always the case with processes of rationali tion have a series of unintended effects At the same time it becomes incre ingly clear who in this process are the winners and who are the losers although this is still subject to fluctuation and change This can be illustrated by two amples from current events Where the range of taught courses is concerned as part of the Bologna Process the new structuring of student study paths and their organisation is aimed at unifying the European area of science to ensure a study that is equally permissive and efficient However it is to be deplored that the mobility of students has become more restricted because of an increasing specialisation in the available study paths Also bachelor degrees do not meet with the anticipated high response from the labour market in all countries so that the master's degree is becoming more or less a must while at the same time the number of study places on master's courses is limited Instead of the intended reduction in the duration of study time in comparison to the previous German Magister and Diplom rather a prolongation in the duration of studies has been recorded Routledge Handbook of Entrepreneurship in Developing Economies Colin C. Williams, Anjula Gurtoo, 2016-07-22 The Routledge Handbook of Entrepreneurship in Developing Economies is a landmark volume that offers a uniquely comprehensive overview of entrepreneurship in developing countries Addressing the multi faceted nature of entrepreneurship chapters explore a vast range of subject areas including education economic policy gender and the prevalence and nature of informal sector entrepreneurship In order to understand the process of new venture creation in developing economies what it means to be engaged in entrepreneurship in a developing world context must be addressed This handbook does so by exploring the difficulties risks and rewards associated with being an entrepreneur and evaluates the impacts of the environment relationships performance and policy dynamics on small and entrepreneurial firms in developing economies The handbook brings together a unique collection of over forty international researchers who are all actively engaged in studying entrepreneurship in a developing world context The chapters offer concise but detailed perspectives and explanations on key aspects of the subject across a diverse array of developing economies spanning Africa Asia Latin America and Eastern Europe In doing so the chapters highlight the heterogeneity of entrepreneurship in developed economies and contribute to the on going policy discourses for managing and promoting entrepreneurial growth in the developing world The book will be of great interest to scholars students and policymakers in the areas of development economics business and management public policy and development studies Against Happiness Owen Flanagan, Joseph E. LeDoux, Bobby Bingle, Daniel M. Haybron, Batja Mesquita, Michele Moody-Adams, Songyao Ren, Anna Sun, Yolonda Y. Wilson, 2023-05-09 The happiness agenda is a worldwide movement that claims that happiness is the highest good happiness can be measured and public policy should promote happiness Against Happiness is a thorough and powerful critique of this program revealing the flaws of its concept of happiness and advocating a renewed focus on equality and justice Written by an interdisciplinary team of authors this book provides both theoretical and empirical analysis of the limitations of the happiness agenda The authors emphasize that this movement draws on a parochial Western centric philosophical basis and demographic sample They show that happiness defined as subjective satisfaction or a surplus of positive emotions bears little resemblance to the richer and more nuanced concepts of the good life found in many world traditions Cross cultural philosophy comparative theology and social and cultural psychology all teach that cultures and subcultures vary in how much value they place on life satisfaction or feeling happy Furthermore the ideas promoted by the happiness agenda can compete with rights justice sustainability and equality

An assessment of Amartya Sen's cooperative-conflict model Angela Kuhnert, 2014-09-23 Seminar paper from the year 2012 in the subject Economics Case Scenarios grade 85 The Open University language English abstract Indonesia offers an interesting case in order to study the bargaining power of women within households The country of Indonesia was created due to the Dutch colonial rule and consists of over 13 000 islands offering a wide range of ethnic variety with the largest ethnic groups being Javanese 41% Sundanese 15% and Maudareses 4% still leaving another 41% belonging to other ethnic groups The PRS Group 2011 Furthermore while Indonesia is the country with the largest Muslim population in the world they only make up 86% of the total population other larger religious groups are Catholics Protestants Hindus and Buddhists The PRS Group 2011 This variety will offer different possibilities in order to investigate the role Indonesian women play in household decision making In this context Amartya Sen s cooperative conflict model will be assessed Households produce Z goods which are household resources in order to gain utility leading to economies of scale which means that larger households can achieve the same level of Z goods as a smaller household while needing less time and money Himmelweit however the specialisation becomes critical in case of an end of the household due to death divorce or separation and suddenly the household is lacking either the person taking care of the household or the one earning money Himmelweit Santos 2008 Yet the specialisation may also not be equally distributed between different members of the household and the welfare of all members may depend on one or more member s caring preferences Himmelweit Santos 2008 Therefore this report will first explore the influence of caring preferences among household members Afterwards two unitary models Samuelson's approach considering a household as a black box and Becker's rotten kid approach will be described. These models do not consider household members who do not have equal bargaining power and therefore Sen's cooperative conflict model will be investigated. In order to assess his model the book Schleier Sarong Minirock by Berninghausen Kerstan and Soeprapto Jansen 2009 will be used in order to get an idea of how women live in Java, Bali, Lombok and Aceh and how norms of society influence their life. Economic and Social Survey of Asia and the Pacific 2013 United Nations, 2013 This document provides a review of the region's performance in 2012 and its outlook in 2013 as it recovers from the global economic crisis and assesses the region's policy response to remaining and emerging vulnerabilities. Areas of economic and social policy analysed include growth, inflation, trade and investment, financial markets, employment, migration and remittances. Key challenges ahead are addressed and policy responses recommended for countries in order to sustain their development. The document also addresses a thematic issue discussing the current approach of macroeconomic policy making and critically assessing whether it has served development adequately.

Engineers in a Developing Country Rènette Du Toit, Joan Roodt, 2009 The study provides a demographic analysis of employment trends across the public and private sectors of the economy and investigates the demand for engineers, technologists and technicians in the workforce. A comprehensive analysis of the educational context for engineering professionals focuses on enrolment, graduation and throughput trends in all engineering disciplines at universities and universities of technology and reveals that although there have been positive innovations in education and training strategies in recent years many issues especially at secondary school level remain a challenge. Women in engineering is a particular focus of this study which devotes a chapter to examining the factors that influence their choice of career, the barriers they experience in the labour market and strategies for encouraging women into the profession. This comprehensive monograph offers valuable quantitative and qualitative information about engineering capacity across all engineering disciplines in South Africa. It is therefore an important reference for all engineering academics as well as decision makers in both the private and public sectors and will be useful to aspiring and current engineering students whatever their field.
