Michigan Schools Report Card:

The Michigan Public High School Context and Performance Report Card Michael Van Beek,Daniel Bowen,Jonathan Mills,2012-07-19 New Developments in Pupil Report Cards ... National Education Association of the United States. Department of superintendence & research division,1934 The 2014 Michigan Public High School Report Card Audrey Spalding,2014-11-18 Charter School Report Card Shawgi Tell,2016-03-24 This book offers a comprehensive overview of charter schools examining their origins promoters and purposes It argues that charter schools as a whole lower the quality of education through the privatization and marketization of education Michigan School Moderator ,1918 More Information Or More Paperwork? Debbi Harris,Marisa Burian-Fitzgerald,2004 The federal No Child Left Behind Act NCLB requires school districts in every state to publish and disseminate annual report cards with information on district performance Schools are required to report similar information These report cards must include not only information on overall student achievement but also on the performance of measurable subgroups including economically disadvantaged students special education students and students from major racial and ethnic groups In Michigan student achievement for this purpose is measured by the Michigan Education Assessment Program MEAP Michigan state law requires schools and districts to report most of this information for a generation Along with provisions for several curricular reforms and new school programs Public Act 25 of 1990 included a statewide requirement for a school report card Under P A 25 school districts in Michigan are required to report annually on student test scores school accreditation status retention dropout rates and several other types of information for each of their schools and for the district overall The reporting requirements of NCLB would seem to be superfluous for the state of Michigan but before judging the value of the NCLB reporting requirements the question to ask is whether schools and districts complied with existing state law The authors of this report used data from the National Center for Educational Statistics NCES for the 1999 2000 school year to examine the district and school production of performance reports in Michigan and at the information contained in those reports Their analysis includes the responses of 143 Michigan school districts and 297 schools and is weighted to be representative at the state level These data were collected prior to the 2002 passage of NCLB and provide information about the types of reports that were available to the public before the new reporting requirements were even under serious discussion The report concludes that most Michigan schools and districts were reporting performance data to parents and the community prior to the report card requirement of NCLB The data suggests that reporting requirements do make a difference reporting rates for information not specified by P A 25 were much lower than for information included in the legislation The issue of reporting requirements will soon be eclipsed by the component of NCLB known as Adequate Yearly Progress AYP NCLB reporting requirements then is more of a report card to the federal government than to parents The report contains two tables Table 1 looks at the types of information reported by school districts and schools to the public they serve Table 2 looks at reporting by a variety of district characteristics size urbanicity degree of poverty and minority enrollment Education Reform and the Limits of Policy Michael Addonizio,C. Philip Kearney,2012 While there is no doubt that an abundance of newly enacted education policies abounds across the state and across the nation more fundamental questions remain What is the nature of these reforms What do they hope to accomplish How successful have they been In this book we attempt to provide some answers to these questions by examining a major set of education policy reforms undertaken in Michigan and across the country over the past 20 or more years These innovations include finance reform state assessment of student performance a series of school accountability measures charter schools schools of choice and for Detroit a bevy of oft conflicting policies and reform efforts that have belabored but seldom helped its public schools In the pages that follow we examine the decidedly mixed outcomes and effects of this large array of reform policies and programs Each chapter addresses a specific policy area outlining reform activity across the nation with an emphasis on Michigan s efforts as well as on one or two states that led these changes

Munson,2010-08-11 The opening of the story vividly follows the author s relocation to Detroit Michigan from Seattle Washington Munson crosses the plains in his Volvo pulling his sailboat to his new home in Grosse Pointe Michigan He a teacher is moving there because his wife a pathologist has found a new job at Detroit Medical Center As he drives he reflects on the land he crosses and the experiences he had in school in rural South Dakota and how it shaped his outlook As he drives he has great doubts about moving to Michigan and questions his future there Yet he is on the road with no way to turn back Finally he arrives in Detroit entering the rustbelt city that looks like a new planet to him poverty stricken destroyed and hopeless The scene shifts to his experiences while moving in and getting settled and the adjustments he has to make to live in a large crime ridden Midwestern city After a discouraging job hunt he is suddenly employed by Detroit Public Schools as a chemistry teacher and enters the classroom The experience is so incredibly different than anything else that he has previously seen in education that he decides to start keeping a diary of relevant day to day activities Months lead to years and he describes the dynamics of teaching in a inner city school Corruption abysmal administrative incompetence and even great but not to numerous educational triumphs go down in print His journal is that of an observer from the outside looking in The diary becomes the stream of consciousness of a hard working dedicated teacher who is tormented by what he sees and cannot change There are successes but the climb is constantly uphill due to administrative bungling a pathetic lack of supplies and low expectations placed on students by the system As the years go by the school is engifted with a huge grant from the Kellogg Foundation It is supposed to reform the school and result in a turn around that never happens Funds disappear not very much appears in the classrooms and nobody seems to notice any appreciable difference in the quality of education After all is spent there is only disillusionment and anger in the school over the project A new principal takes over and the school further declines into violence and chaos Yet through all of this Munson finds that education can and does take place in his classroom if he works hard with what he has available and does the best he can under the worsening circumstances In the end his main positive experience is the students themselves those who could be changed and enabled After thirteen years in Northern High School the environment becomes so violent dangerous and hopeless that Munson seriously contemplates transferring out to another school In this last year he describes a crumbling lawless school so vividly that you can smell the smoke from the fires and hear the screams of students beating and being beaten August 2004 finds Munson in Finney High School just a bit over a mile from his home He finds more of the same there but the commute is at least short He surprisingly teaches quite successfully there for three years and then on June 22 2007 he retires from thirty years of public school teaching On that very same day Northern High closes its doors due to lack of enrollment At the end of the day the lights were turned out

IJER Vol 3-N4 International Journal of Educational Reform, 1994-10-01 The mission of the International Journal of Educational Reform IJER is to keep readers up to date with worldwide developments in education reform by providing scholarly information and practical analysis from recognized international authorities As the only peer reviewed scholarly publication that combines authors voices without regard for the political affiliations perspectives or research methodologies IJER provides readers with a balanced view of all sides of the political and educational mainstream To this end IJER includes but is not limited to inquiry based and opinion pieces on developments in such areas as policy administration curriculum instruction law and research IJER should thus be of interest to professional educators with decision making roles and policymakers at all levels turn since it provides a broad based conversation between and among policymakers practitioners and academicians about reform goals objectives and methods for success throughout the world Readers can call on IJER to learn from an international group of reform implementers by discovering what they can do that has actually worked IJER can also help readers to understand the pitfalls of current reforms in order to avoid making similar mistakes Finally it is the mission of IJER to help readers to learn about key issues in school reform from movers and shakers who help to study and shape the power base directing educational reform in the U S and the world
