Bring Braille back to the Modern World

[1] In 1771, French linguist Valentin Haüy was stopping for lunch in a Parisian café when he witnessed extremely poor treatment of a person who was blind. [2] Haüy then developed a way to read. [3] That system impressed typographic shoemakers on wet paper, raising them up and allowing them to be physically felt. [4] Haüy went on to set up the world's first school for blind children in 1784, where he taught them how to read using his clunky, embossed, tactile reading system. [5] It only allowed a limited number of words on a single page so couldn't be replicated by the students themselves. [6] Tactile systems didn't develop any further until 1815, when French army officer Charles Barbier invented a complicated system soldiers could use to read and write in the dark. [7] In 1821, then, Barbier took his system to Haüy's school. [8] There, a 12-year-old boy called Louis Braille decided to take everything good about Barbier's system and make it better. [9] By 1824, Braille had simplified it to just six simple dots, these simple dots were arranged in the same two-column format. [10] People could read a letter with just one finger.
