

Conclusion:

The results of this experiment support the hypothesis by increasing the rate of change as the amount of extraction enzyme is increased. The enzyme increased overall from 25 ml. to 5 ml., causing the rate of change to increase from 0.0005 to 0.003. The extraction enzyme briefly affected to the hydrogen peroxide, separating it into water and oxygen. The hydrogen peroxide reacted with the guaiacol during its decomposition to produce the orange color in the solution. Errors could have been made in the incorrect measurement of reactants and the improper use of the colorimeter. In conclusion, the increase of an enzyme results in the increase in production of the components of its substrate. Improvements could have been made in testing even greater amounts of the extraction enzyme in order to obtain more conclusive results.

Discussion:

Does the substrate concentration influence the rate of reaction? Yes, with increased substrate concentration there is more available for the enzyme to catalyze and the reaction rate will increase.

Endocrine and Metabolic Effects on Maternal-fetal and Neonatal Outcomes Huixia Yang, Moshe Hod, Jie Yan, Cuilin Zhang, 2024-07-10 Pregnancy is a complex state with many endocrine and metabolic challenges to a woman's physiology. Inappropriate maternal endocrine and metabolic changes such as obesity, hyperglycemia, hyperlipidemia, and hypothyroidism may lead to short-term and long-term complications in the mother and offspring. This not only affects population health but also imposes a huge social and economic burden accompanied by significant direct and indirect public health costs. Therefore, the study of endocrine and metabolic effects on maternal, fetal, and neonatal outcomes is an especially important research field. These studies will lead to new approaches to predicting metabolic diseases in pregnancy and provide new solutions and effective interventions to prevent or delay those related diseases. Furthermore, they will reveal unknown pathophysiological mechanisms of inappropriate maternal endocrine and metabolic changes during pregnancy and their implications on short-term and long-term complications in the mother and offspring. This could lead to updated diagnosis and treatment strategies for women with endocrine and metabolic diseases during pregnancy. The proposed Research Topic intends to evaluate the pathophysiological mechanisms of inappropriate maternal endocrine and metabolic changes during pregnancy and their implications on short-term and long-term complications in the mother and offspring. The evolving trends in prediction, diagnosis, prevention, and treatment strategies of endocrine and metabolic diseases during pregnancy are also encouraged. In addition, the goal of this research topic is to uncover the characteristics of maternal endocrine and metabolic changes in special populations like twins, women with obesity, gestational diabetes mellitus, pregnancy hypothyroidism, etc. Annual
