California. Court of Appeal (1st Appellate District). Records and Briefs California (State)., Gender, Ethnicity, and Health Research Sana Loue, 2007-05-08 Health researchers routinely evaluate health and illness across subgroups defined by their sex gender ethnicity and race All too often these classifications are proffered as an explanation for any differences that may be detected for example in access to care frequency of disease or response to treatment Relatively few researchers however have examined what these classifications mean on a theoretical level or in the context of their own research Assume for example that a researcher concludes from his or her data that African Americans utilize certain surgical procedures less frequently than whites This conclusion may mean little without an examination of the various underlying issues Is there such a construct as race at all How were whites and African Americans classified as such Does this finding reflect inappropriate overutilization of the specific procedures among whites or inappropriate underutilization among African Americans To what extent are socioeconomic status and method of payment related to the less frequent use Are there differences in the manner in which health care providers present the various treatment options to whites and to African Americans that could account for these differences in utilization Are there differences in health care seeking and health care preferences between the two groups that would explain the difference in utilization Is the racial classification a surrogate measure for another variable that has remained unidentified and unmeasured All too often unfortunately such issues are ignored or lightly dismissed with an entreaty for additional research Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association, 1999 The Relationship Between Nutrient Intake and Colorectal Cancer in a Tecumseh Cohort Maria Georgiana Restuccia, 1993 AMSTAT News, 1984 Methodological Issues in Epidemiologic Studies of Childhood Leukemia Kyndaron Sybil Reinier, 2002 Health Promotion Pan American Health Organization, 1996. These groundbreaking studies have had a lasting impact and attest to the belief that public health requires a holistic point of view rather than one limited to disease prevention and control. The papers that comprise the anthology were selected to meet two objectives: to disseminate a wide range of information and to illustrate the growth and development of health promotion as a worldwide strategy. More than 50 public health experts from four continents contributed to the anthology. Their papers illustrate the diverse nature of health promotion topics and are presented in five Parts: Developing a Framework, Building Healthy Public Policy, Strengthening Community Action, Developing Personal Health Skills, and Health Promotion for Specific Groups. Key documents in the health promotion movement in the Americas, the Ottawa Charter for Health Promotion, Health Promotion and Equity, the Declaration of Bogotá, and the Caribbean Charter for Health Promotion supplement the text. A glossary of health promotion terms and concepts completes the collection.

Comparative Medicine, 2001

Health Research Methods Stephen Buetow, 2007. The subject of this book is health research methods in general, including literature review methods and qualitative and quantitative methods. Illustrative examples were selected from primary care. The book helps readers to situate their research within the basic belief systems guiding human action and learn the practical skills to critically appraise others' health research and undertake their own health research. It presents the latest knowledge on health research methods in a novel, structured manner that creatively decreases the work burden for readers by minimising the use of text as a communication medium. The book consists of 80% of concise summary tables and figures which tell readers quickly what they most need to know without them having to search extensively. By necessity the tables are clear and direct.

Drug Information Patrick M. Malone, Karen L. Kier, John Stanovich, 2011-09-09. Everything

pharmacists need to know about drug information management. Drug Information: A Guide for Pharmacists, Fourth Edition, teaches students and professionals how to research, interpret, evaluate, collate, and disseminate drug information in the most effective and efficient manner possible. Updated throughout, the book also addresses other important issues such as the legal and ethical considerations of providing information, how to respond to requests for information, and how to determine what information should be made available.

Drug Information: A Guide for Pharmacists, Fourth Edition, covers essential topics such as Formulating effective responses and recommendations for information, Evaluation of drug literature, The application of statistical analysis in the biomedical sciences, Drug evaluation monographs, Adverse drug reactions, Medication and patient safety, Investigational drugs, New to this edition: Five new chapters, Policy Development, Project Design and Implementation, Drug Information in Ambulatory Care, Drug Information and Contemporary Community Pharmacy Practice, Drug Information Education and Training, and Pharmaceutical Industry and Regulatory Affairs. Opportunities for Drug Information Specialists.

Key Concepts have been added to the beginning of each chapter and are identified with icons in the chapter text. Case Studies and multiple choice questions have been added to most chapters. Twenty two appendices include Drug Consultation Request Form, Performing a PubMed Search, Questions for Assessing Clinical Trials, and Questions to Consider for Critique of Primary Literature An Introduction to Clinical Research in Psychiatry Dan German Blazer (II), Judith C. Hays, 1998 The evaluation of psychiatric disorders and the delivery of mental health services is grounded in clinical research. Findings from published studies in scientific journals are translated by clinicians into changes in daily practice. Psychiatrists and other mental health professionals read original research reports and case studies in journals and often attend scientific meetings where the latest research findings are presented. Yet despite their extensive education and experience most psychiatrists do not have sufficient training in clinical research methods to evaluate critically the latest findings. Blazer and Hays have written this primer to acquaint practitioners and residents with the basic methodology of study design. The book covers single subject studies, description studies such as case registers and population based surveys, community surveys, cohort and case control studies, longitudinal studies, population genetic studies and clinical trials. The focus is on clinical research in which the patient is the unit of analysis. The two authors write in clear style uncluttered by technical jargon so that their book will be accessible to readers with little or no grounding in clinical research methods. The theoretical presentation is illustrated with examples from published studies which highlight the problems typically encountered by clinicians involved in patient oriented research in psychiatry. Introduction to Clinical Research in Psychiatry employs an interactive problem based approach to introducing epidemiologic methods which has been successfully tested in a course the authors taught at the Duke University School of Medicine. The book is designed primarily for mental health care professionals with little experience in research methods including psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, nurses and others working in mental health centers, hospitals and psychiatric ambulatory care centers.
