

A full-page advertisement for Jean Paul Gaultier's Divine perfume. The background is a textured gold color. A woman with dark hair, wearing a gold headband, a multi-strand gold necklace, and a strapless gold dress with vertical pleats, is the central figure. She is holding a large, ornate, golden perfume bottle in her left hand. The bottle has a complex, sculptural design with a ring at the top and a pointed, ribbed body. Behind her head is a large, circular, ornate gold halo with radiating lines. The text 'Jean Paul GAULTIER' is written in white, with 'GAULTIER' in a larger, bold font. Below it, 'GAULTIER DIVINE' is written in a very large, bold, white font. At the bottom, 'THE NEW EAU DE PARFUM' and 'REILLABLE' are written in a smaller, white font.

The Divine Image Ian Alexander McFarland, Theologian Ian McFarland claims that Christians have mainly misappropriated the image of God language for 2000 years and thereby missed a rich resource for our knowledge of God What then does it mean to say that we are made in God s image or that Christ is the very image or prototype of God Rather than referring to some germinal divine element in humans such as reason McFarland claims that the image of God in us tells us something about God and how we know God It tells us that God though not identical with us communicates Godself to us in creative love in a way that offers precious clues about God s transcendence immanence triune life self disclosure incarnation and intentions for human life Too we learn from Jesus something new about God Gathered as Christ s body the church too images God and sets us on a quest to discern the image of God in Christ s incarnate body McFarland s careful and exacting work builds from this kernel a powerful Christian vision of God s life and our own destiny in Christ
