

MLA 8th Edition Documentation Style

1. Format of a Research Paper

Your word processor comes with default settings (margin, line height, paragraph spacing, and typeface) that will likely need adjustment. For MLA style, you need:

1.1. Margin: 1-inch margins on all four sides on an A-4 size paper

1.2. Text Formatting:

- 2.0 line height (i.e., double-spaced). Double space everything including the preliminary information, title, body text and quotations, and the works cited list.
- no extra spacing after paragraphs
- 12-point typeface (Times New Roman)

1.3. Heading and Title:

- You do not need a separate cover page for a research paper/term paper
- Flush to the left margin and type a) your name, b) Your instructor's name, c) Course code and course title, d) Date of submission
- Then write the title of your research paper. Put the title on the center margin. Do not bold or italicize or underline your title.

1.4. Page Numbers:

Toward a Recovery of Nineteenth Century Farming Handbooks

This paper aims to bring the nineteenth century farming handbooks into the agricultural literature discussion by connecting three agricultural handbooks from the nineteenth century with the nineteenth century agricultural history.

- Your instructor may ask you not to write the page number on the title/first page.
- A truly informative title will include the general topic, and your precise opinion on that topic. (So, if you plan to compare Hamlet and Macbeth, your title should state the unique point you want to make about Hamlet and Macbeth. Reuse part of your thesis statement.)

This handout presumes you already know why you should cite your sources (to establish your authority, to introduce persuasive evidence, to avoid plagiarism, etc.). The following instructions focus on how you format the page for proper documentation.

To fully cite a source requires two stages. The first happens in the body of your paper (the "In-text citation") and the second happens on a separate page at the end of your paper i.e. on the "Works Cited List".
