Wind

Observation

Wind is the movement of air. When wind blows, the air is moving from one place to another. Wind is measured in kilometers per hour (km/h). The faster the wind blows, the more energy it has. Wind can blow in different directions. The direction the wind is blowing from is called the wind's source.

Wind is important for many reasons. It can help cool us down on a hot day. It can also help move air and water around the world. This helps to create different climates in different parts of the world.

Wind can be measured with a anemometer. An anemometer is a device that measures wind speed and direction. It has three cups that spin in the wind. The faster the cups spin, the faster the wind is blowing. The anemometer will then show the wind's speed and direction.
