Part 1: Historical Perspective on the Theory of Natural Selection

1. In the 1860's, what types of evidence were available to indicate that evolution had occurred on Earth?

2. How did knowledge of mechanisms of artificial selection (used in developing various strains of domesticated animals and plants) help Darwin understand how evolution could occur?

3. Based on his studies, Darwin made a number of observations; they are listed in the chart. Complete the chart by answering how Darwin made the observations.

Observation	How did Darwin make this observation? That is, what did he read or observe that gave him this understanding?
a. All species populations have the reproductive potential to increase exponentially.
b. The number of individuals in natural populations tends to remain stable over time.
c. Environmental resources are limited.

Modeling Dynamic Phenomena in Molecular and Cellular Biology Lee A. Segel, 1984-03-30 The dynamic development of various processes is a central problem of biology and indeed of all the sciences The mathematics describing that development is in general complicated because the models that are realistic are usually nonlinear Consequently many biologists may not notice a possible application of theory They may be unable to decide whether a particular model captures the essence of a system or to appreciate that analysis of a model can reveal important aspects of biological problems and may even describe in detail how a system works The aim of this textbook is to remedy the situation by adopting a general approach to model analysis and applying it several times to problems drawn primarily from molecular and cellular biology of gradually increasing biological and mathematical complexity Although material of considerable sophistication is included little mathematical background is required only some exposure to elementary calculus appendixes supply the necessary mathematics and the author concentrates on concepts rather than techniques He also emphasizes the role of computers in giving a full picture of model behavior and complementing more qualitative analysis Some problems suitable for computer analysis are also included This is a class tested textbook suitable for a one semester course for advanced undergraduate and beginning graduate students in biology or applied mathematics It can also be used as a source book for teachers and a reference for specialists
