A hiking adventure

After careful planning, the big morning finally arrived: a two-day hike in the mountains with my classmates. Our teachers had given us advice, and would meet us at the beginning and end of each day, but otherwise we were on our own.

We set off at top speed, but the six hours of hiking still to come soon made us realise that walking at a steady pace is better than racing. Luckily, our teachers had given us a great tip: to share essential equipment. We'd therefore only packed one of the things we could share among us, like a kettle and a camping stove. Even so, we found it a challenge to carry our backpacks. It became clear that the lighter your backpack, the more comfortable you are.

By the afternoon, we were heading towards the campsite but were suddenly surprised to find ourselves near a forest. We must have taken a wrong turning, and in a panic started arguing about which way to go. We realised that we hadn't been checking the map regularly and that's exactly what we should have been doing. It made us all aware, not only of the importance of keeping calm if you get lost, but also how to work in a team. Luckily we managed to get back on the right path without too much difficulty.

The next morning we cooked a huge breakfast. I don't usually eat much in the mornings, but after the previous day's hike I knew this would provide the energy I needed. It was a sunny morning and we set off in high spirits. As we walked, it became more humid. The pleasant day was quickly turning into a mountain storm and soon the rain was pouring and we were cold. I understood then how quickly the weather in the mountains can change.

Some people started complaining about being tired and wet and the end seemed a long way off. But eventually, we arrived home safe and I was really proud that I'd done it. It made me appreciate that I'm more capable than I thought.

The Impact of Learning to Read on Visual Processing Tânia Fernandes,Regine Kolinsky,2016-01-26 Reading is at the interface between the vision and spoken language domains An emergent bulk of research indicates that learning to read strongly impacts on non linguistic visual object processing both at the behavioral level e g on mirror image processing enantiomorphy and at the brain level e g inducing top down effects as well as neural competition effects Yet many questions regarding the exact nature locus and consequences of these effects remain hitherto unanswered The current Special Topic aims at contributing to the understanding of how such a cultural activity as reading might modulate visual processing by providing a landmark forum in which researchers define the state of the art and future directions on this issue We thus welcome reviews of current work original research and opinion articles that focus on the impact of literacy on the cognitive and or brain visual processes In addition to studies directly focusing on this topic we will consider as highly relevant evidence on reading and visual processes in typical and atypical development including in adult people differing in schooling and literacy as well as in neuropsychological cases e g developmental dyslexia We also encourage researchers on nonhuman primate visual processing to consider the potential contribution of their studies to this Special Topic     [Socially Situated?
