Disparity of Service Nicole C. Greely,2023-04-11 This qualitative study examines the effects of the reduction in available funds resulting from the current economic situation on students with disabilities in postsecondary education There is little evidence of a study of this nature conducted in the United States which makes such a study important at the present time Twenty students with one or more disabilities attending postsecondary institutions including community colleges a public university and a private university were interviewed with regard to their navigation of postsecondary education during difficult economic times I found that despite reductions in Disabled Student Services DSS the majority of respondents believed they would be able to graduate at their expected date of completion Although I found that a majority of respondents did not notice reductions in DSS some pointed out areas where services had been reduced I found that a significant portion of the research participants were satisfied with DSS While my findings did not support the original hypothesis students with disabilities still experienced a level of frustration that may adversely affect their educational and professional goals and or quality of life One conclusion that I was able to draw from this data is that students are not always aware of reduced services unless they are directly affected by them or until such reductions are brought to their attention Another conclusion I drew from the research is that despite increased adversity at the level of postsecondary education my respondents were still able to overcome their challenges and proceed towards their educational goals

Retrofitting the Built Environment Taofeeq Ibn-Mohammed,2017-05-11 The building sector exerts huge pressure on the built and natural environment and despite significant efforts to minimise the consequences the International Energy Agency submitted that by 2050 emissions related to buildings could double However in the building sector significant improvement in energy use and reduction in greenhouse gas emissions can be achieved given the potential to do this at no cost using new technology Since most buildings that exist now will still exist in 2050 the greatest energy savings can be made through refurbishment In the future legislation on carbon usage as well as innovative technologies and knowledge will trigger aggressive emission reductions in buildings and this will compel installers of retrofit options to consider embodied emissions in order to achieve the best value retrofit plan This book in response to the growing environmental importance of retrofit options describes the development of a powerful decision support system detailing both theoretical and practical insights for the evaluation of environmentally and economically optimal retrofit options for non domestic buildings The chapters within it discuss engineering energy environment and economics in the context of climate change and sustainability while a methodological framework of a decision support system is used to analyse a range of building energy retrofit options The theoretical developments provided in this book can be transferred to other industries beyond the built environment and will be useful to researchers energy systems engineers architects building energy managers supply chain and procurement managers sustainability managers and policy makers
