

How To Choose Your University

Identify your interests

The university and undergraduate program you choose will determine your career path, so it should be something that you are actually interested in. Think about your hobbies, interests, and favorite FSc subjects. Also think about which subjects you tend to score well on for the BISE board exams. Imagine yourself working in that particular field.

Select programs of interest

After determining your interests, look for relevant university programs for undergraduate students. For example, if you are interested in money management, then you can choose university programs such as Bachelor in Business Administration, Bachelor in Accounting & Finance, Chartered Accounting, etc...

Match your subjects to program requirements

Read up on the general subject requirements for each program that you are interested in. For example, for Mechanical Engineering the program may require you to study physics, chemistry, and mathematics in your FSc. Furthermore, your BISE board exams scores should meet the minimum requirements for the program. Your FSc subjects should match the subject requirements to make you eligible to apply for that program.

Make your final decision

Wait to hear back from the universities, and focus on your final BISE board exams preparation now. After receiving the acceptance letters, you must make your final decision. This should be based on which university seems most appropriate based on how well it meets your budget, distance, and all other factors. Trust your instincts when deciding which university will ultimately be best for you!

The College Student's Guide To: Picking the Right Major

The Hyperink Team, 2012-02-24 ABOUT THE BOOK Once you are in college everything changes whether you're an 18 year old living away from home for the first time or you're attending as an older student Even the way you talk to people changes when you're in college Instead of just saying hello and asking your name and where you're from now there is a new question that people will ask you time and time again What's your major In college your major becomes one of your defining characteristics It says something about your interests your personality your hobbies your talents and skills and most importantly what kind of career path you will be choosing after you graduate If you do not already have a major you might come to dread this question In fact the question often extends past the student body and becomes a common topic of conversation with everybody you bump into Once people find out you are in college the first thing they want to know is your chosen field of subject Saying I haven't decided yet over and over can get a little old but don't despair Although you may envy those lucky people who come into college with a clear path in mind and instantly know what they want to do with their lives you are not alone EXCERPT FROM THE BOOK 6 Research the idea of a double major If you really cannot decide between two majors and the decision is causing you undue stress consider taking a little extra time to walk away with two different majors With this double threat you will be able to pursue jobs in two different fields and have a little more freedom when it comes to deciding what you want to do with your life Since double majors typically take more time to complete be sure you are prepared for the extra time in school and have the right financial and emotional resources to manage the extra stresses and obligations But for those who are truly dedicated to two different fields of study a double major is a great way to realize all your dreams at once 7 Remember that your minor counts too Being able to declare a minor can help you compromise between two very different interests If you really want to pursue a career in Computer Science but you are also interested in math see if you can pursue one field of study as a minor degree A minor degree lets you explore a field you are interested in without having to fulfill the
