

- Cognitivist Dissonance: A psychological theory that describes the discomfort people experience when their social cognition beliefs, attitudes, or values (Cognitivist Dissonance Theory) conflicts with their own personal and individual traits or the beliefs of their social environment.
- Behavioral-Conditioning: A process of associating and linking experiences, responses, and consequences in the environment creates often negative feelings of anxiety, depression, and a general fear of social situations and relationships.
- Human Behavior: Philosophical and psychological theories focus on the inherent qualities, characteristics, and behaviors that define what it means to be human. Discussions about human nature often involve beliefs about innate traits we were born with or learned throughout life.

Follow-Along Questions:

1. Existentialism: Several philosophers in the film discuss existentialism, the philosophical movement that explores individual existence, freedom, and choice. Pay attention to their views on human freedom and responsibility. How do these ideas align with psychological concepts like self-determination and personal agency?

2. Mind-Body Connection: The film delves into the relationship between the mind and the body, exploring how our thoughts and emotions impact our physical well-being. Notice the discussions around stress, emotions, and their effects on the body. How do these discussions relate to psychological disorders and the mind-body connection in psychology?

3. Consciousness and Self-Awareness: Philosophers in the film can be roughly divided into two categories of consciousness and self-awareness. Listen for their perspectives on the distinction between being aware of oneself and being aware of others. How do these distinctions connect to the idea of self-awareness in psychology, such as mirror self-recognition?
