

FLUID MECHANICS QUIZ

The pipe bend shown in Figure 1 below is in the horizontal plane and is part of a pipeline conveying oil. The oil, with a specific gravity of 0.83 enters the reducing bend at Section A with a velocity of 3.25 m/s and a pressure of 147 kPa. The oil then exits the bend at Section B.

- a. Identify and insert on the drawing a suitable Control Volume.
- b. Determine:
  - i. The velocity of the oil at section B
  - ii. The pressure at section B (assume negligible losses across the bend)
  - iii. The magnitude and direction of the force required to hold the bend in place.

Resolve all forces in along the x and y reference axes shown such that the x axis is parallel to the inlet velocity at Section A.

SOLUTION:

- a. We can treat the fluid within sections A and B as the control volume. All equations will be carried out with respect to this boundary.
- b. i) We can get the velocity of the oil at section B from the continuity equation.

$$m = \rho_A v_A A_A = \rho_B v_B A_B \text{ where } m = \text{mass, } \rho = \text{density, } v = \text{velocity, } A = \text{area}$$
