Special Advocates in the Adversarial System John Jackson, 2019-07-24 The last twenty years have seen an unprecedented rise in the use of secret courts or closed material proceedings largely brought about in response to the need to protect intelligence sources in the fight against terrorism. This has called into question the commitment of legal systems to long cherished principles of adversarial justice and due process. Foremost among the measures designed to minimise the prejudice caused to parties who have been excluded from such proceedings has been the use of special advocates who are given access to sensitive national security material and can make representations to the court on behalf of excluded parties. Special advocates are now deployed across a range of administrative, civil and criminal proceedings in many common law jurisdictions including the UK, Canada, New Zealand, Hong Kong and Australia. This book analyses the professional services special advocates offer across a range of different types of closed proceedings. Drawing on extensive interviews with special advocates and with lawyers and judges who have worked with them, the book examines the manner in which special advocates are appointed and supported, how their position differs from that of ordinary counsel within the adversarial system and the challenges they face in the work that they do. Comparisons are made between different special advocate systems and with other models of security cleared counsel, including that used in the United States, to consider what changes might be made to strengthen their adversarial role in closed proceedings. In making an assessment of the future of special advocacy, the book argues that there is a need to reconceptualise the unique role that special advocates play in the administration of justice.

Bibliographic Guide to Music New York Public Library. Music Division, 1982     Mobility Scooters Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Transport Committee, 2010 In the light of anecdotal accounts of accidents involving the vehicles but little hard evidence, MPs urge the Government to collect better data on the use of scooters as well as incidents and injuries where they are involved. To develop sound policy, we need a comprehensive evidence base detailing the number and nature of incidents involving mobility scooters on the UK's pavements and roads. Only by doing so will issues such as the legal status of mobility scooters, the appropriateness of proficiency tests and the rights of users to take the vehicles on public transport be adequately addressed. The Committee's report notes that the Department for Transport has launched a consultation on many of these issues but is concerned that, after a similar review in 2005, Ministers failed to act on many of its findings. With a growing number of mobility scooter users on the UK's pavements and roads, the MPs call on the Government to take decisive action where necessary.

House of Commons - Transport Committee: Access to Ports - HC 266 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee, 2013-11-26 In this report looking at policy for improving road and rail access to ports, the Transport Committee urges the Department for Transport (DfT) to become a keener advocate for UK ports. The Government should contribute to significant improvements to strategic networks which also deliver wider benefits rather than simply expect port operators to pick up the entire bill for measures required to mitigate increased traffic due to port expansion If the Government chooses to apply European Commission state aid rules in this area more strictly than other EU countries it should explain why it does so Policy in this area should be applied consistently across the country While some ports have contributed towards transport schemes to improve access others have not and the differences in approach have not been explained or justified Ports should also continue to contribute to local transport infrastructure improvements following discussions with relevant local bodies The Department for Transport should demonstrate whether port master plans have had any impact highlighting good examples of such plans and of how they have influenced decision makers Finally the Government should devise a more effective successor to the Waterborne Freight Grant to stimulate coastal shipping

Energywatch and Postwatch Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts,2005-11-29 In 2000 two new consumer bodies the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council Energywatch and the Consumer Council for Postal Services Postwatch were established to represent the views of consumers to investigate consumer complaints and to provide advice and information services Following on from the National Audit Office report HC 1076 session 2003 04 ISBN 0102929793 published in October 2004 the Committee's report examines the effectiveness of the postal and energy watchdogs in their role of promoting and protecting the interests of consumers Overall the Committee is unimpressed with the achievements of either watchdog the level of consumer complaints has remained high with low consumer recognition of their role whilst operating costs have escalated The Committee's report makes a number of recommendations designed to encourage improvement in performance and to reduce costs DFID Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts,2012-02-03 The DFID's transfer programmes deliver cash food and assets such as livestock directly to people living in poverty Transfers can be used to tackle a range of issues such as hunger and malnutrition or access to health and education services in a variety of contexts In 2010 11 the Department spent 192 million on social protection programmes which includes its transfer programmes The evidence heard suggests transfer programmes are effective in targeting aid and ensuring the money goes directly to the poorest and most vulnerable people It is therefore surprising that the use of transfer programmes has not increased The Department only plans to support transfer programmes in 17 of its 28 priority countries It does not have an overall strategy for the use of transfers and its decisions on where to support transfer programmes look reactive The decision as to whether or not to propose a transfer programme is taken by staff working in the country and it is not clear why there are extensive programmes in some countries and none in others The Department does not collect data on all the costs of the transfer programmes it supports and the Department is therefore unable to say whether it is lifting more people out of poverty for every pound spent on transfers compared to other programmes The Department's long term objective is for the governments of recipient countries to take on the responsibility of owning and funding transfers as part of a sustainable social security system However the Department has not been clear about how individual programmes will be sustained

Re-licensing Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: ODPM: Housing, Planning, Local Government and the Regions Committee, 2006-03-17 The Licensing Act 2003 brought ten existing licensing schemes administered by local authorities into one new regime and created more flexible licensing hours. This report concentrates on the technicalities of licensing all those applying for a licence for the first time or needing a new licence under the Act had to submit applications by a certain date. The transition period was in 2005 and it soon became apparent that people involved in the re licensing process were encountering difficulties. The Committee finds that the Department for Culture Media and Sport DCMS has failed to administer the transition period effectively. Despite a two year gap between the passing of the legislation and the implementation of the Act regulations and guidance were issued late and proved to be contradictory and confusing. Local authorities were unable to train staff or prepare application materials in good time. There was inadequate support from central government for local authorities. Many licensing fees rose dramatically leading to concerns that some small businesses might abandon their licensable activities. The regulatory burden on residents, licensees and local authorities appears to have increased. The government does not appear to recognise some of the issues hindering the smooth operation of the Act. Overly prescriptive regulations and unhelpful constraints on local government structure are both causing difficulties.

Public Trust in Government Statistics Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Public Administration Select Committee, 2013-02-25 In this report the Public Administration Select Committee PASC concludes that despite the positive steps implemented by the Statistics and Registration Service Act 2007 the Act there remain issues and concerns about the way government statistics are produced and disseminated which remain a genuine risk to public confidence in the statistical system and must be addressed. The Act was intended to ensure that statistics are produced to the highest professional standards and that effective governance structures are in place to protect transparency and accountability and the Committee found the Act had helped to improve the operation of the statistical system. However the Act needs to have greater clarity and transparency in the way it operates and in the functioning of the UK Statistics Authority the Statistics Authority Those who regulate the quality of National Statistics are in the same organisation as those officials who produce data the two groups should have a clear separation in practice but this is hard to demonstrate when they work in the same building and share support services. It is also not appropriate that ministers should have lengthy prior access to certain statistics but other interested parties do not. The Statistics Authority does not seem to have sufficient control over the quality and integrity of the different data sets and statistical products produced by departments and their agencies. Planning and improving data access both within Government and for users outside Government should be given greater attention by the Statistics Authority as well as by Government departments

The compensation scheme for former Icelandic water trawermen Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2008-02-26 This report from the Committee of Public Accounts follows two other reports into the subject of the compensation for former Icelandic water trawermen an NAO report HCP 530 session 2006 07 ISBN 9780102945621 and HCP 313 session 2006 07 entitled Put together in haste Cod Wars ISBN 9780102944471 The Committee took evidence from the Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on administration of the compensation scheme The Scheme was set up to compensate former trawermen who had lost their jobs when the distant water fishing industry collapsed in the 1970s At the time of the collapse most trawermen did not receive compensation The Scheme itself ran between October 2000 and October 2002 with some 7 000 claimants and a sum of 42 million having been paid to 4 400 former trawermen Findings in the two earlier reports indicated the then Department of Trade and Industry had problems in verifying claims for the scheme and further that it lacked an understanding of the working practices of the 1970s fishing industry The Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman found maladministration of the Scheme especially in delivering it in an effective manner The Committee of Public Accounts has set out a number of conclusions and recommendations including that the Department should learn lessons from this and the previous reports when administering future schemes that it is important for the Department to test the availability of evidence on real cases before launching new compensation schemes that a clear understanding of the industry needs to be in place before setting the terms of any grant schemes that the Department failed to test the impact of the scheme's rules on different types of applicant before the scheme's launch in 25 of 100 cases there was insufficient evidence to say whether payments made by the Department accorded with the scheme's rules the Department did not employ proper project planning and risk management
