Abstract :

EGALITE is a 3 year project for the development of new advanced ICT and its objective is improving access by citizens, professionals and EU and Member States institutions to multilingual legal documents in digital libraries, in textual and multimedia format, by creating advanced legal knowledge resources like thesauri, terminologies and ontologies, usable by humans and machines alike, and thus also enabling people to better understand legal documents. The main objective will be achieved by the synergy of different advanced technologies, which interact to provide a new generation approach to the representation, construction and use of legal knowledge for retrieving documents. The specific objectives are: How to represent legal knowledge and its complex dynamic and dialectic character in a way that is acceptable by legal operators? How to deal with the huge amount of available legal documents in the different European and national laws and languages? How to extract knowledge in an automated way from multimedia documents, so to access their content without having to watch all the video contained in them? How to deal with the legal issues raised by the availability of these services? A prototype will demonstrate that these objectives will be reached. The proposed action to be funded within the Seventh Framework Programme's Objectiv e ICT-2007-4.1 (ICT-2007-4.1) "Digital libraries and technology-enhanced learning" and emphasises the needs of legal professionals, business organisations and institutions of accessing in a better way legal digital libraries. These needs have been recognised by the European Commission itself in several documents. The proposal is based on previous collaborations, experiments and partial implementations by the partners in previous EU projects. The project has a highly interdisciplinary character since it combines ICT issues with legal ones requiring both experience in computer science and knowledge of legal practitioners.

Evaluation Summary Report 2007:

Toxicological Effects of Veterinary Medicinal Products in Humans Kevin Woodward, 2012-12-31 Toxicological Effects of Veterinary Medicinal Products in Humans is the first definitive guide to discuss the adverse effects of veterinary medicinal products in humans. The chapters focus on occupational safety and consumer issues and examine the circumstances under which exposure is likely to occur. To be in context it reviews this against the background of adverse health effects from other sources in the veterinary and farming professions. The book examines adverse drug effects reported to regulatory agencies mainly the FDA's Center for Veterinary Medicine and then considers a series of individual drugs including antibiotics, anaesthetics and organophosphorus compounds. The chapters also discuss the fundamental aspects of regulatory issues relating to safety assessment and examine the manner in which user safety is assessed prior to authorisation approval and what measures can be taken after authorisation approval in the light of findings from pharmacovigilance activities. There is growing concern over the issue of antimicrobial resistance and the contribution made by veterinary medicinal products. This too is addressed along with the significance to human health and measures that can be taken to mitigate the effects if any of the use of antibiotics in animals e.g. prudent use measures. The book will be an essential resource for medical practitioners in hospitals and general practice, pharmaceutical industry scientists, analysts, regulators and risk managers.

Response to Intervention RtI involves evaluating the degree that students demonstrate appropriate prosocial behavior in response to effective classroom management. When students are not progressing or responding academically or behaviorally to effective instructional conditions, RtI includes a functional assessment problem-solving process to determine the reasons for the lack of success and the implementation of strategic through intensive interventions to help those students progress and be successful. At an operational level, RtI is often described as working within a flexible three-tiered system that is guided by students' academic and behavioral outcomes. The goal ultimately is to facilitate learning and mastery by ensuring effective instruction and classroom management for all students Tier 1 and by speeding early and effective interventions to those students who need more strategic interventions Tier 2 or more intensive interventions Tier 3 interventions see the diagram below Critically effective RtI processes focus on a interventions not diagnostic labels b individualized functional assessment not universal or standard assessment batteries tests or evaluation protocols and c student focused contextual decision making not rigid psychometric decision rules At the core of this process is a data based functional assessment problem solving process While there are many sound problem solving models and processes all of the effective ones have four primary components Problem Identification Problem Analysis Intervention and Evaluation While some utilize more steps or different semantic terms all of the research based models components can be distilled down to these four primary components From an RtI perspective it is critical to note that RtI is an evaluation step That is it is impossible to determine whether a student has responded to an intervention if the intervention has not already been implemented This Electronic Book E Book focuses on describing the critical components of effective RtI systems and approaches at the school district and state levels as well as the step by step the Data based Functional Assessment Problem Solving process that has been used nationally by Project ACHIEVE as the SPRINT School Prevention Review and Intervention Team process In doing this a Problem solving Consultation Intervention context is used throughout and effective instruction assessment progress monitoring intervention and evaluation processes from kindergarten through high school are highlighted In addition the seven steps of the Data based Functional Assessment Problem Solving process are presented in detail and applied to case studies Readers will learn how to scientifically clarify and identify referred student problems how to generate hypotheses to explain why these problems exist how to test and validate in invalidate these hypotheses and then how to link confirmed hypotheses to evidence based interventions and to evaluate students responsiveness to them Numerous case studies are presented throughout the E Book to demonstrate the RtI process and to provide readers with examples of how to implement it at student school system and state levels Readers should finish the book with a working understanding of how to implement effective RtI processes at all of these levels and how to strategically plan and evaluate the implementation process

Charles B. Connor,Neil A. Chapman,Laura J. Connor,2009-08-27 Geoscientists worldwide are developing and applying methodologies to estimate geologic hazards associated with the siting of nuclear facilities Understanding such hazards particularly in the context of the long functional lifetimes of many nuclear facilities is challenging This book documents the current state of the art in volcanic and tectonic hazard assessment for proposed nuclear facilities which must be located in areas where the risks associated with geologic processes are quantifiable and demonstrably low Specific topics include overviews of volcanic and tectonic processes the history of development of hazard assessment methodologies description of current techniques for characterizing hazards and development of probabilistic methods for estimating risks Hazard assessment examples are drawn from around the world This volume will promote interest and debate about this important topic among researchers and graduates developing methods in geologic hazard assessment geologists and engineers who assess the safety of nuclear facilities and regulatory bodies that evaluate such assessments Insights from Visitor Studies

Xingyu Zhao,2024-12-09 Insights from Visitor Studies A purpose oriented model for museums provides a systematic overview of the value of visitor studies and for the first time in English a comprehensive overview of the development of visitor studies in mainland China This book emphasizes the importance of approaching visitor studies with a focus on purpose oriented way and introduces the PSD model based on it Zhao suggests that when museums aim to use the results of visitor research to gain support or when they want to conduct a visitor evaluation to address a specific issue they can follow the logical sequence of Purpose Standpoint and Dimension for analysis and identification This approach will help museums derive maximum value from previous research or enhance the effectiveness of evaluations in practice Throughout this process Zhao not only consolidates literature from various cultural backgrounds into a unified framework but also strives to incorporate existing terminology from the field of visitor studies to the greatest extent possible Insights from Visitor Studies A purpose oriented model for museums examines the value of visitor studies for museum practice It will be of great interest to museum practitioners to design transparent visitor research and evaluation practices It will also assist academics and students engaged in the study of museums heritage and tourism Evaluation of the Role and Contribution of UNDP in
