E-Business and Virtual Enterprises Luis M. Camarinha-Matos, Hamideh Afsarmanesh, Ricardo J. Rabelo, 2013-06-29 The fast progress in computer networks and their wide availability complemented with on one hand the explosion of the mobile computing and on the other hand the trends in the direction of ubiquitous computing act as powerful enablers for new forms of highly dynamic collaborative organizations and emergence of new business practices. The first efforts in virtual enterprises VE were strongly constrained by the need to design and develop horizontal infrastructures aimed at supporting the basic collaboration needs of consortia of enterprises. Even pilot projects that were focused on specific business domains were forced to first develop some basic infrastructures before being able to develop their specific business models. Nowadays although there is still a need to consolidate and standardize the horizontal infrastructures the focus is more and more directed to the development of new vertical business models and the corresponding support tools. At the same time in the earlier R D projects the attention was almost exclusively devoted to the operation phase of the VE life cycle while now there are more activities addressing the creation phase developing mechanisms to support the rapid formation of new virtual organizations for new business opportunities. In order to complete the life cycle there is a need to also invest on support for VE dissolution.

Experimental Games Patrick Jagoda, 2020-12-07 In our unprecedently networked world games have come to occupy an important space in many of our everyday lives. Digital games alone engage an estimated 2.5 billion people worldwide as of 2020 and other forms of gaming such as board games role playing escape rooms and puzzles command an ever expanding audience. At the same time gamification the application of game mechanics to traditionally nongame spheres such as personal health and fitness shopping habit tracking and more has imposed unprecedented levels of competition repetition and quantification on daily life. Drawing from his own experience as a game designer Patrick Jagoda argues that games need not be synonymous with gamification. He studies experimental games that intervene in the neoliberal project from the inside out examining a broad variety of mainstream and independent games including StarCraft Candy Crush Saga Stardew Valley Dys4ia Braid and Undertale. Beyond a diagnosis of gamification Jagoda imagines ways that games can be experimental not only in the sense of problem solving but also the more nuanced notion of problem making that embraces the complexities of our digital present. The result is a game changing book on the sociopolitical potential of this form of mass entertainment.

In Search of the Virtual Class Lalita Rajasingham,John Tiffin,2002-09-11 Shirley zips into her skin tight school uniform which on the outside looks something like a ski suit The lining of the suit in fact contains cabling that makes the suit a communication system and there are pressure pads where the suit touches skin that give a sense of touch Next she sits astride something that is a bit like a motorbike except that it has no wheels and is attached firmly to the floor Her feet fit on to something similar to a brake and accelerator and her gloved hands hold onto handlebars She shouts I m off to school Dad Her father who is taking time out from his teleworking begins to remind her that the family are going teleshopping in the virtual city later in the day but it is too late his daughter has already donned her school helmet She is no longer in the real world of her real home she is in the virtual world of her virtual school Is this the shape of the future of education This book presents a vision of what will happen to education and training as information technology develops The argument is simple To prepare people for life in an information society they need to be taught with the technology of an information society But what shape will that take Can the classroom as we know it a communications system which has been in place for four thousand years be replaced The authors argue that through the development of telecommunications for telelearning a genuine revolution in education is in the making The book describes how through the convergence of a cluster of new technologies including virtual reality artificial intelligence nanotechnology and the superhighways of telecommunications a new educational paradigm will emerge in the form of a virtual class Teachers trainers and educators who worry about how best to prepare students for life in an ever changing world will find much inspiration in this engagingly written and jargon free book
