The Railroad Runs to Canada

Along the Eastern Shore of Maryland, in Dorchester County in Caroline County, the masters kept hearing whispers about the man named Moses, who was running off slaves. At first they did not believe in his existence. The stories about him were fantastic, unbelievable, but they watched for him. They offered rewards for his capture.

They never saw him. Now and then they heard whispered rumors to the effect that he was in the neighborhood. The woods were searched. The roads were watched. There was never anything to indicate his whereabouts. But a few days afterward, a goodly number of slaves would be gone from the plantation. Neither the master nor the overseer had heard or seen anything.

"One of the runaways said, again, 'Let me go back. Let me go back,' and stood still, and then turned around and said, over his shoulder, 'I am going back.'"

"She lifted the gun, aimed it at the despairing slave. She said, 'Go on with us or die.' The hoarse low-pitched voice was grim."

He hesitated for a moment and then he joined the others. They started walking again. She tried to explain to them why most of them could go back to the plantation. If a runaway returned, he would turn traitor, the master and the overseer would know him to have traitor. The returned slave would disclose the stopping places, the hiding places, the contrabands they had used with the full knowledge of the owner of the farm, the name of the German farmer who had fed them and sheltered them. These people who had risked their own security to help runaways would be ruined, fined, imprisoned.

"She said, 'We got to go live or die. And freedom's not bought with death.'"
