

C-3.2) Insulation Test

Before the pump is put into service, an insulation (megger) test should be performed on the motor. The insulation values (ohms) as well as the voltage (potted and wet test) (amps) should be recorded on the start-up report. Motors/Generators with an insulation value of less than 0.5 M-Ohms should be investigated for moisture or damaged cables before proceeding.

C-3.3) Pump-Down Test

After the pump has been properly wired and checked into the field, pump to fill station. It is advisable to check the system by filling with liquid and allowing the pump to operate through it's pumping cycle. The time needed to empty the system, or pump-down time along with the volume of water, should be recorded on the start-up report.

SECTION D: PREVENTATIVE MAINTENANCE

As the motor and seal chamber are oil filled, no lubrication or other maintenance is required, and generally Sealed Pump will give very reliable service and can be expected to operate for years of normal average pumping without failing. However, as with any mechanical piece of equipment a preventive maintenance program is recommended and suggested for include the following checks:

- 1) Test moisture indicator control "Red Bulb" for continuity at about. When in the seal chamber will energize a seal leak warning light at the control panel. This is a warning light only and does not stop the motor. It indicates the seal has leaked and must be repaired. This should be done within 2 or 3 weeks to prevent further damage. (See section C-2.3)
- 2) Inspect impeller and body for excessive buildup of clogging and repair as required per section C-2.
- 3) Inspect outer shaft seal and replace as required per section C-3.
- 4) Check motor for ground leakage and proper amp draw.

SECTION E: SERVICE AND REPAIR

NOTE: All item numbers in 1.) refer to Figures 8 & 9.

WARNING 1 - Electrical power to the pump motor must be disconnected and locked out to prevent any dangerous electrical hazards or personal danger before any service work is done on the pump.

CAUTION 1 - Operating pump builds up heat and pressure, allow time for pump to cool to room temperature before handling or servicing.

E-1) Lubrication

E-1.1) Changing Oil

1. Place pump on its side, and drain oil into a clean, dry container.
2. Check oil for contamination using an oil tester with a range to 30 PPM (ppm breakdown).

3. Oil is found to be clean and uncontaminated (measured above 25 PPM breakdown), refill the seal chamber as per section E-1.2.

4. If oil is found to be dirty or contaminated (or measured below 15 PPM breakdown), the pump must be carefully inspected for leaks at the shaft seal (4), before refilling with oil. To locate the leak, perform a pressure test as per section E-1.3. After leak is repaired, refill with new oil as per section E-1.2.

E-1.2) Replacing Oil

Seal Chamber - Drain all oil from seal chamber and dispose or properly. Refill with two parts (8) for pressure's new cooling oil as per Table 1. An air space must remain to compensate for oil expansion (See Fig. 9). Set seal on side and fill.

IMPORTANT! - Do not overfill oil. Overfilling of seal chamber with oil can create excessive and dangerous hydraulic pressure which can destroy the pump and create a hazard. Overfilling oil voids warranty.

E-1.3) Pressure Test

Seal Chamber - Before checking the pump for leaks around the shaft seal, the oil level should be full. Remove plug, plug. Apply pipe clamp to pressure gauge assembly and tighten into pipe clamp hole. Pressure motor housing is 10 PSI. Use a leak solution around the sealed area and inspect joints for "air bubbles". If, after five minutes, the pressure is still holding constant, and no "bubbles" are observed, slowly bleed the pressure and remove the gauge assembly. Replace the plug using a washer. If the pressure does not hold, then the leak must be located.

CAUTION! - Pressure builds up extremely fast, increase pressure by "tapping" air intake. Too much pressure will damage seal. Do Not exceed 50 PSI in seal chamber.
