

The Landmark Climate Change Report

Helping property professionals,
property investors and businesses to understand how climate change
could impact a property

A report that helps you deliver extra value. It's intuitive and keeps your clients up to speed on the short, medium and long term physical and transitional climate-based risks with advice and recommendations for a specific property.

Key benefits

Landmark's Climate Change Report allows you to provide best practice due diligence and inform clients on future climate change risks.

The data baseline to inform the assessment is derived from UKCP 18. Developed by the Met Office, this is the most authoritative climate projection data available for the UK.

- Easy-to-understand, intuitive report – based on a UPRN
- Queries handled by industry professionals, in partnership with specialist academics
- Introduces Climate Change to your clients along with recommendations for clear decision making
- Includes transition risk through energy performance
- Available for both Residential and Commercial property transactions

Why Landmark's Climate Change Report?

This report draws insights from experts and presents them in a way that helps property professionals deliver value to customers.

We're acknowledged leaders in legal products and data used by the UK's property market. Our pioneering teams enable thousands of successful transactions, every day.

Climate change affects every industry, and every part of our lives. These key statistics are a reminder why it's important to measure these specific risks and convey the significance of climate change risk to customers.

5.4
million

Flooding

Flood risk is currently measured to affect 5.4 million properties in the UK.

3%

Subsidence

By 2030, the British Geological Survey (BGS) expect climate change-related subsidence to affect more than 3% of properties, and by 2070, over 10%.

60%

Heat stress

The most up-to-date Met Office predictions state that summer temperatures will be between 1 - 6°C warmer and 60% drier by 2070 with a greater possibility of heatwaves.

What are the key sections of the report?

Physical risks

- Flood risk
- Subsidence
- Heat Stress
- Coastal Erosion

Transitional Risks

- EPCs – energy performance

The search

This UPRN-based search is designed to provide an overview of future risk as well as in depth, advice and recommendations for managing current environmental risks at the property and is provided within the standard desktop search.

Home Builders And Climate Change Report:

Spatial Planning and Climate Change Elizabeth Wilson, Jake Piper, 2010-09-13 Spatial planning has a vital role to play in the move to a low carbon energy future and in adapting to climate change To do this spatial planning must develop and implement new approaches Elizabeth Wilson and Jake Piper explore a wide range of issues in this comprehensive book on the relationship between our changing climate and spatial planning and suggest ways of addressing the challenges by taking a longer sighted approach to our preparation for the future This text includes an overview of what we know already about future climate change and its impacts as we attempt both to adapt to these changes and to reduce the emissions which cause them the role of spatial planning in relation to climate change offering some theoretical and political explanations for the challenges that planning faces in the coming decades a review of policy and legislation at international EU and UK levels in regard to climate change and the support this gives to the planning system case studies detailing what responses the UK and the Netherlands have made so far in light of the evidence ways to help new and existing urban developments to reduce energy use and to adapt to climate change through strengthening the relationships between urban and rural areas to avoid water shortage floods or loss of biodiversity The authors take an evidence based look at this hugely important topic providing a well illustrated text for spatial planning professionals politicians and the interested public as well as a useful reference for postgraduate planning geography urban studies urban design and environmental studies students Disasters in Paradise

Amanda D. Concha-Holmes, Anthony Oliver-Smith, 2019-10-11 Long considered ground zero for global climate change in the United States Florida presents the perfect case study for disaster risk and prevention Building on the idea that disasters are produced by historical and contemporary social processes as well as natural phenomena Amanda D Concha Holmes and Anthony Oliver Smith present a collection of ethnographic case studies that examine the social and environmental effects of Florida s public and private sector development policies Contributors to Disasters in Paradise explore how these practices have increased the vulnerability of Floridians to hurricanes tornadoes floods droughts frosts and forest fires Sustainable

Urban Neighbourhood David Rudlin, Nicholas Falk, 2010-05-14 This successful title previously known as Building the 21st Century Home and now in its second edition explores and explains the trends and issues that underlie the renaissance of UK towns and cities and describes the sustainable urban neighbourhood as a model for rebuilding urban areas The book reviews the way that planning policies architectural trends and economic forces have undermined the viability of urban areas in Britain since the Industrial Revolution Now that much post war planning philosophy is being discredited we are left with few urban models other than garden city inspired suburbia Are these appropriate in the 21st century given environmental concerns demographic change social and economic pressures The authors suggest that these trends point to a very different urban future The authors argue that we must reform our towns and cities so that they become attractive humane places where people will choose to live The Sustainable Urban Neighbourhood is a model for such reform and the book describes Commission's report examines whether the current UK environmental planning system provides an effective and accountable framework for protecting the environment. It focuses on the regulation and planning of land use and also considers other policy areas such as pollution control, air quality, waste and water management and biological diversity. The report finds that the current system lacks a coherent statement of environmental objectives and priorities. Responsibilities are divided between the UK government, the devolved administrations, local authorities and specialist agencies with a multiplicity of often overlapping and sometimes conflicting plans and strategies. The report makes 84 recommendations which are designed to establish clearer environmental policies and objectives, establish a clear purpose for town and country planning, rationalise the overall environmental planning system by introducing integrated spatial strategies to cover all aspects of sustainable development and all forms of land use and improve the availability of environmental information.
