Medicare 2015 Intake South Africa:

Preventing non-communicable diseases using pricing policies Shu Wen Ng, Thomas J. Hoerger, Rachel Nugent, 2021-05-27 Preventing non-communicable diseases NCDs in an effective and sustainable way will require forward looking policy solutions that can address multiple objectives. This was true pre COVID 19 and is even more true now. There are already examples from across the globe and within the United States that show how these may be possible. Although there are still many unknowns around how the design targeting level sequencing integration and implementation of fiscal policies together can maximize their NCD prevention potential, there is already clear evidence that health taxes and particularly sugar sweetened beverage SSB taxes are cost effective. Nonetheless, policies alone may not succeed. Political will to prioritize well-being protections against industry interference and public buy-in are necessary. If those elements align, pricing policies that consider the context in question can be designed and implemented to achieve several goals around reducing consumption of unhealthy SSBs and foods, narrowing existing nutritional and health disparities, encouraging economic and social development. The US and its local and state jurisdictions should consider these pricing policy issues and their contexts carefully in collaboration with community partners and researchers to design multi-duty actions and to be prepared for future windows of opportunities to open for policy passage and implementation.

Congressional Record

United States. Congress, 1997 Interdisciplinary Nutritional Management and Care for Older Adults Ólöf G. Geirsdóttir, Jack J. Bell, 2021-09-10 This open access book aims to primarily support nurses as leaders and champions of multimodal interdisciplinary nutrition care for older adults. A structured approach to fundamentals of nutrition care across interdisciplinary settings is combined with additional short chapters about special topics in geriatric nutrition. The book is designed to provide highly accessible information on evidence-based management and care for older adults with a focus on practical guidance and advice across acute rehabilitation and primary and secondary malnutrition prevention settings. The cost of malnutrition in England alone has been estimated to be 19.6 billion per year or more than 15% of the total public expenditure on health and social care for those aged 65 years. The importance and benefit of specialised nutrition care delivered by experts in the field is well established for those with complex nutrition care needs. However, despite the substantial adverse impact of malnutrition on patient and healthcare outcomes, specialised management of this condition is often under resourced, overlooked and under prioritised by both older adults and their treating teams. As an alternative, timely, efficient and effective supportive nutrition care opportunities may be appropriately implemented by nurses and non-specialist interdisciplinary healthcare team members working together with nutrition specialists and the older adults they care for. Practical low-risk opportunities should be considered across nutrition screening, assessment, intervention and monitoring domains for many patients with or at risk of malnutrition. Whilst a variety of team members may contribute to supportive nutrition care, the nursing profession provide a clear focal point. Nurses across diverse settings provide the backbone for interdisciplinary teamwork and essential patient care. The nursing profession should consequently be considered best placed to administer Interdisciplinary multimodal nutrition care wherever specialist nutrition care referrals are unlikely to add value or are simply not available. As such the book is a valuable resource for all healthcare providers dedicated to working with older patients to improve nutrition care.

Novel Technologies in the Diagnosis and Management of Sleep-Disordered Breathing, volume II Ding Zou, Henri Korkalainen, 2025-10-31. Sleep disordered breathing (SDB) ranging from habitual snoring to severe obstructive sleep apnea (OSA) is highly prevalent and represents a growing global healthcare burden. Besides disrupting sleep, SDB leads to detrimental outcomes such as excessive daytime sleepiness, neurocognitive impairment, and increased cardiometabolic morbidities. In the Research Topic Volume I we observed the technology developments that enable rapid innovations in the field of SDB. Simple diagnostic methods and novel disease management solutions strongly suggest that the SDB diagnostic and management are moving from a one size fits all approach to precision sleep medicine. To build on the success of Volume I presenting outstanding works in the field, the Volume II aims to expand on the recent developments in the field of sleep medicine. Possible topics of interest include but are not limited to:

- 1. Novel insights on pathophysiology mechanisms of OSA from physiological signals collected from standard sleep studies
- 2. Novel signal acquisition and sensor technologies
- 3. Alternative polysomnography metrics and analyses
- 4. Minimally invasive data collection for screening and long term follow up of SDB
- 5. Artificial intelligence and machine learning based signal analysis approach
- 6. Biomarkers and phenotyping based prediction models on treatment outcomes
- 7. Big data approaches and telemedicine in sleep medicine
- 8. Emerging technologies to provide alternative treatment options for better treatment adherence and clinical outcomes
- 9. Disease management approaches encompass phenotyping and endotyping for better patient characterization including disease severity, daytime symptoms as well as comorbidity conditions
- 10. Patient reported outcome measures assessment and sleep disparities studies

We are interested in original works, protocols, literature reviews, meta analyses, perspectives, and expert consensus related to sleep disorders with a specific focus on SDB.
