The Oxford Guide to Literature in English Translation Peter France, 2000 Translation has been a crucial process in world culture over the past two millennia and more. In the English speaking cultures many of the most important texts are translations from Homer to Beckett the Bible to Freud. Although recent years have seen a boom in translation studies there has been no comprehensive yet convenient guide to this essential element of literature in English. Written by eminent scholars from many countries the Oxford Guide to Literature in English Translation meets this need and will be essential reading for all students of English and comparative literature. It highlights the place of translation in our culture encouraging awareness of the issues raised making the translator more visible. Concentrating on major writers and works it covers translations out of many languages from Greek to Korean from Swahili to Russian. For some works e.g. Virgil's Aeneid which have been much translated the discussion is historical and critical showing how translation has evolved over the centuries and bringing out the differences between versions. Elsewhere with less familiar literatures the Guide examines the extent to which translation has done justice to the range of work available. The Guide is divided into two parts. Part I contains substantial essays on theoretical questions a pioneering outline of the history of translation into English and discussions of the problems raised by specific types of text e.g. poetry oral literature. The second much longer part consists of entries grouped by language of origin some are devoted to individual texts e.g. the Thousand and One Nights or writers e.g. Ibsen Proust but the majority offer a critical overview of a genre e.g. Chinese poetry Spanish Golden Age drama or of a national literature e.g. Hungarian Scottish Gaelic. There is a selective bibliography for each entry and an index of authors and translators.

Romania, 1973 Serials Cataloging Jim E. Cole, Jackie Zajanc, 2019-12-06. Serials Cataloging 1987 assesses the state of the art of serials cataloging especially in two areas the rules by which the cataloguing record is created and the automation of that record. It looks at how libraries dependence upon bibliographic utilities for cataloguing data has led to an acceptance of cataloguing standards that conform closely to internationally accepted principles.

Fitting Linear Relationships R.W. Farebrother, 2012-12-06. This book is intended for students of mathematical statistics who are interested in the early history of their subject. It gives detailed algebraic descriptions of the fitting of linear relationships by the method of least squares L and the related least absolute 2 deviations L and minimax absolute deviations Loo procedures. These traditional line J fitting procedures are of course also addressed in conventional statistical textbooks but the discussion of their historical background is usually extremely slight if not entirely absent. The present book complements the analysis of these procedures given in S.M. Stigler's excellent work The History of Statistics The Quantification of Uncertainty before 1900. However the present book gives a more detailed account of the algebraic structure underlying these traditional fitting procedures. It is anticipated that readers of the present book will obtain a clear understanding of the historical background to these and other commonly used statistical procedures Further a careful consideration of the wide variety of distinct approaches to a particular topic such as the method of least squares will give the reader valuable insights into the essential nature of the selected topic
