Migrant Care Workers:

Migrant Care Workers Karen Christensen, Ingrid Guldvik, 2016-04-22 In this beautifully argued book Karen Cristensen and Ingrid Guldvik provide a comparatively based insight to the historical context for public care work and show how migration policies general welfare and long term care policies including the cash for care schemes as well as cultural differences in values in the UK and Norway set the context for how migrant care workers can realise their individual life projects Through viewing migrants as individuals who actively construct their lives within the options and conditions they are given at any time they bring to the discussion an awareness of what might be called a new type of migrant one who is neither a victim of the divide between the global north and the global south nor someone leaving family behind but individuals using care work as a part of their own life project of potential self improvement

The Global Old Age Care Industry Vincent Horn, Cornelia Schweppe, Anita Böcker, María Bruquetas-Callejo, 2021-08-14 This book focuses on the emerging global old age care industry developing as a response to tackle the old age care crisis in richer countries In this global industry multiple actors are involved in recruiting skilling and placing migrant care workers in different spheres of the receiving country s old age care system This book delves into the analysis of these actors and the multiple levels influencing their activities Accordingly it examines the significance of old age care regimes and policies as well as intermediaries and promoters for initiating shaping and perpetuating old age care arrangements based on migrant labor and the relationships within them Particular emphasis is placed on the risks and implications of these arrangements for the well being and the social protection of the different actors involved The book analyzes these processes and structures from a global perspective including different countries and regions of the world

The Role of Migrant Care Workers in Ageing Societies Sarah Spencer, 2010 The ageing of the population presents serious challenges to developed Western nations particularly those managing the retirement and care of a growing number of older persons The ageing population will generate an increasing demand for caregivers a demand made challenging because of the declining availability of native born caregivers compounded by various factors including declining family care of older people increasing life expectancy of infirm elderly and the increasing demand for social caregivers often in home settings Health care institutions and long term care facilities have been turning to the foreign born to address shortages of workers reflecting a parallel trend in the migration of health care workers worldwide Indeed migrants already play a significant role in the care of older persons This report presents the comparative results of a research project on the role of migrants in the workforce of caregivers for the elderly in the United Kingdom Ireland Canada and the United States The purpose of the study is to examine 1 the contextual factors influencing current and future demand for care workers in an ageing society particularly migrant care workers 2 the experiences of migrant workers of their employers and of older people in institutional care residential and nursing care homes and in homebased care 3 the implications of the employment of migrant workers in the care of older people for the working conditions of the migrants concerned and for the quality of care and 4 the implications of these findings for the future care of older people and for migration policy and practice P 4 of cover

Migrant Care Workers in Ageing Societies Alessio Cangiano, Isabel Shutes, Sarah Spencer, George Leeson, 2009* Migration, Independence and Care Christensen, 2017 Previous studies into migration and care have largely had a focus on female migrants domestic work in personal households and the global NorthSouth issue of how the richer part of the world relies on those from poorer countries This study financed by the Norwegian Meltzer Research Fund challenges the previous studies by focusing on both female and male workers on publicly organised care work and avoids the victims perspective by looking at migrant care workers as active agents shaping their lives within the options and limitations they are given at any time Using life story interviews the study investigates the working and everyday lives of migrant care workers in the United Kingdom and Norway It has a particular focus on working experiences related to the increasingly important long term care cash for care scheme by which disabled and older people are given cash to employ their own workers aiming at independence this being also the general aim of the migrant care workers life projects The study analyses life trajectories downwards social mobility to care work gendered care worker profiles and ways of negotiating cultural differences The collection of life stories gives the study a rich and meaningful way of comparing working lives in context

Migration and Care Labour B. Anderson, I. Shutes, 2014-03-18 The provision of care has been widely referred to as facing a crisis International migrants are increasingly relied upon to provide care as domestic workers nannies care assistants and nurses This international volume examines the global construction of migrant care labour and how it manifests itself in different contexts

Migrant Care Workers in Ageing Societies Alessio Cangiano, 2009

Rights to Settle? -Comparing Migrant Care Worker Policies in Taiwan and South Korea Yi-Chun Chien, 2019 Industrialized countries around the world are facing rapid demographic changes including declining fertility rates greater longevity and an aging population and these are creating unprecedented challenges in care provision Many East Asian countries have used migrant care workers to solve the challenges of labour shortages in the social welfare sector The purpose of this dissertation is to understand why East Asian countries have adopted different policy approaches to recruit migrant care workers Specifically it investigates why Taiwan s policies are designed to recruit household care workers with a temporary contract while South Korea s policies focus on institutional care workers with access to long term settlement The dissertation explores this question by probing the politics of eldercare and care migration and tracing the development of migrant care worker policies By employing a framework that intersects care employment and migration regimes it highlights the institutional contexts that shape how a country designs its migrant care worker policies It argues that migrant care worker policies manifest how care work citizenship and gender equality are defined and contested by the receiving society It also demonstrates how the development of migrant care worker policies reflects the legacies of earlier policy decisions by illuminating the political actors with access to the policymaking process Based on archival research and 53 personal interviews with government bureaucrats policymakers and migrant worker activists the dissertation maps out the political mechanisms that determine the levels of rights labour mobility and access to membership rights for migrant care workers in Taiwan and South Korea It challenges conventional understandings of policy as formal and static and posits the formation of migrant care worker policy as an organic process which is modified and contested as part of a political process Care Between Work and Welfare in European Societies B. Pfau-Effinger,T. Rostgaard,2011-06-14 This book provides insights into the theoretical framework of tensions related to care for children and the elderly It analyzes if and under what conditions welfare state reforms have contributed to strengthening existing tensions creating new tensions or relaxing such tensions Knowledge, Power, and Migration Yasmeen Abu-Laban,Mireille Paquet,Ethel Tungohan,2025-06-17 As the field of migration studies has grown the asymmetrical relationship between researchers in the Global North and in the South has produced a body of work that centres the concerns of the former Those from the Global North and wealthier countries continue to produce the greater portion of this research while research from Global South scholars with lived experiences as migrants is received as anecdotal or too niche to have universal application Knowledge Power and Migration assembles researchers from across the divide to question the ways in which research practices can change the conversation on immigration It encourages a necessary curiosity about how scholarship in the field can shape global social and epistemic justice Migration is a constant in human history but the sharp decline in permanent resettlement options increasingly selective criteria and violent enforcement measures of the twenty first century constitute a crisis of immigration policy Only by redressing the inequalities it shares with global governance structures can the discipline confront this historic challenge Research on immigration can occasion reflections and practices that challenge epistemic injustices Knowledge Power and Migration contributes to this ongoing project while offering insights on the practical organization of new forms of dialogue on migration in a largely unequal world The Role of Migrant Care Workers in Aging Societies Susan Martin,2009 Investigates migrants role in eldercare in the United States particularly as professional caregivers or physicians dentists nurses and therapists as well as direct care providers or home health aides and lower skilled providers Brokering Circular Labour Migration Huey Shy Chau,2020-03-05 This book examines the commercialisation of domestic and care work through private agencies that organise transnational care arrangements by brokering migrant workers The book focuses on the emergence of private for profit home care agencies following the 2011 extension of the Free Movement of Workers to Eastern European Countries agreement in Switzerland The agencies recruit migrant women from these countries and place them in private households for elderly care This book explores how circular labour migration for these care workers is facilitated In the form of a mobile ethnography it traces their journey from Eastern European countries to Switzerland from when care workers find employment and are recruited by agencies to when they arrive at their designated households From the agencies analytical standpoint the book examines the recruitment and placement practices of the home care agencies and their role in facilitating migration Brokering Labour Migration offers an understanding of new migration patterns and highlights fundamental changes in migration control with the extension of free movement of workers in Switzerland to lower wage countries in Eastern Europe It will be an invaluable resource for academics and scholars of geography anthropology sociology and gender and migration

The Role of Migrant Care Workers in Ageing Societies : Report on Research Findings in the United Kingdom, Ireland, Canada, and the United States ,2010 The ageing of the population presents serious challenges to developed Western nations particularly those managing the retirement and care of a growing number of older persons The ageing population will generate an increasing demand for caregivers a demand made challenging because of the declining availability of nativeborn caregivers compounded by various factors including declining family care of older people increasing life expectancy of infirm elderly and the increasing demand for social caregivers often in home settings Health care institutions and long term care facilities have been turning to the foreign born to address shortages of workers reflecting a parallel trend in the migration of health care workers worldwide Indeed migrants already play a significant role in the care of older persons

Role of Migrant Care Workers in Ageing Societies , Quality of Life Improvement: Smart Approaches for the Working and Aging Populations Sabina Baraković,Zahid Akhtar,Jasmina Barakovic Husic,2024-03-19 Quality of life QoL is a broad concept that has many definitions and meanings depending on the context under consideration It can be perceived as the overall enjoyment of life and a multidimensional concept which emphasizes the self perceptions of an individual s current state of mind which is affected in a complex way by the person s physical health psychological state personal beliefs social relationships and their relationship to salient features of their environment On the other hand demographic data suggests an increased need for workers worldwide and a rapid aging trend in the active workforce as well as in general This trend of workforce deficit and population aging will be even more prominent in the future Therefore in order to have and sustain a healthy motivated and productive workforce but also healthy independent and active elderly adults one must improve their QoL and vice versa Improving QoL will improve general public health and in turn create communities who can contribute in diverse and positive ways to both promote and sustain health for future generations

Gender and Generational Division in EU Citizenship Trudie Knijn,Manuela Naldini,2018-07-27 Family law gender equality care arrangements and the consequences of demographic change have long been on the agenda of the European Union However these are coloured by national and cultural factors more than any other disputes and form a barrier to the equalising of status for European citizens Using an interdisciplinary approach and bringing together law scholars political scientists and sociologists this book looks at the implications of the categorisation of identity in the European Union and what they mean for the realisation of citizens rights throughout the EU

Migrants Needed Kristin Noack,2025 Globalizing Care Economies and Migrant Workers Nicola Yeates,2009-01-15 Workers providing social and health care services lie at the heart of migration patterns underpinning current gobalization processes Using a global care chains perspective the author describes and analyses the experiences of migrant care workers maps the extent forms and governance of care services internationalisation and considers the policy implications in developed and developing countries This multi disciplinary analysis draws on original empirical research and advances a theoretical perspective that sheds new light on contemporary and historical dimensions of this migration Crossborder Care Miloslav Bahna, Martina Sekulová, 2018-09-25 This book analyses the circular migration of care workers in Central Europe using the example of Slovak carers in 24 hour care provision for the elderly in Austria Challenging analyses that focus primarily on care drain and care regimes Bahna and Sekulov supplement quantitative methodology with qualitative fieldwork to demonstrate the importance of the sending country s economic context The authors discuss the dynamics of economic differences between Austria and its post communist neighbors as preconditions of the crossborder care provision bridging analyses of policy and legal frameworks with approaches from labor migration study Even as they scrutinize the relevance of care drain based analyses Bahna and Sekulov bring to the fore the interplay of economic differences social policies gender and migration regimes with geographic proximity to study long term impacts of care work including an analysis of employment after care work International Labour Review ,2014
