

MLA9 reference style guidelines

The basics | An Overview

This image provides you with a guideline for the MLA style. It is based on the MLA handbook, 9th edition. This overview gives the basics, for more information please visit <https://www.floriana.com/> for more information on this and other reference styles.

Formatting

The Basics | The Essay

- Use 1 inch margins.
- Legible font between 11 and 13 points.
- Double spaced.
- Page header contains your surname and page number, flushed to the right.
- Titles don't have punctuations, underlining or bolding.
- Indent the first line of each paragraph.

The Basics | Works Cited

- The title should say Works Cited centered at the top of the page, after the main body text.
- The entries should be in alphabetical order of the surname of the authors.
- Use a hanging indent on each entry.
- Double space throughout.

References

Works Cited (list) is based on 9 core elements that can be applied to any source you may encounter. Such as the header of a website could be the title of the source. A newspaper is a container for a single article.

It contains the following cores, to begin with:

1. Author
2. Title of the source
3. Title of the container
4. Contributor
5. Version
6. Number
7. Publisher
8. Publication date
9. Location

e.g.

Vargas, Maria. Planet Earth: Six Continents of the Atlantis. 2nd ed., Journal of Earthly Sciences, vol. 3, no. 5, 2022.

In-Text Citations

Printed sources:

Either use a parenthetical citation, where the author and page number both appear inside the parentheses. Or use a signaling phrase style, where the author's name is in the text itself. However, the page number should always be inside the parentheses. Johnson argued that "Students require more money" (54).

Unknown author

Use a shortened title of the source in quotation marks instead of the author's surname.

Multiple authors

For two authors, list both surnames in the parentheses separated by the word "and".

Internet source:

Try to provide enough information that leads the reader to the correct references in the Works Cited list. This can be the author's name, or title of the internet source
