 Christopher De Hamel, 1999-01-18 La colección Artesanos medievales es una colección de libros que tienen como asunto el estudio tanto de los distintos artistas anónimos que trabajaron durante la Edad Media bajo el anonimato de los gremios y de los talleres como de los distintos objetos o construcciones realizadas por los artesanos medievales dando así un panorama muy poco conocido de la labor artística y social de los mismos. Cada grupo de elementos: armaduras, edificios, etc., es una forma de adentrarse en la vida cotidiana de los pueblos y las ciudades, estableciendo además las diferentes relaciones sociales que se daban entre artesanos y medio social. El detallismo aparece así como una manera de comprender lo más general. En este volumen dedicado a los escribas e iluminadores se estudia desde los procesos de fabricación y preparación del pergamino, plumas, pintura y tintas hasta la realización del manuscrito. El examen de la función del librero o la carrera profesional de cierto número de escribas e iluminadores que son no solamente monjes sino también artesanos laicos completan este panorama que se extiende desde el siglo XI hasta el XIV.
